Director/Cast Bios

Sean Cain (short version)

Having studied and worked under writer-director, Victor Salva (Jeepers Creepers), Sean Cain released his first film, “Naked Beneath the Water” in 2008. Since then he’s directed two more films, “Silent Night, Zombie Night” & “Breath of Hate” in the span of less than a year which prompted Fangoria to dub him the ‘Indie Horror Specialist.’

Sean Cain (long version)

Originally hailing from the San Francisco Bay Area, director Sean Cain credits his father for leading him astray down the path known as filmmaking. When he was a child the family would reenact scenes from his father's favorite television show, "Mike Hammer" on video and watch them after dinner.

It was years later that Sean officially began in the movie business as an editor on “Jeepers Creepers” writer-director Victor Salva's as-yet-unreleased "Kindred Spirits."

In 1995, Sean graduated from the film department at San Francisco State and immediately flew out to Houston, Texas where he spent the next two months working on Salva's “Powder.” Having enjoyed his time in the Lone Star State, he spent the next couple of years working in the film industry there that led to directing the short film, "South of Heaven" starring Lew Temple ("The Devil's Rejects").

Sean now resides in Los Angeles where he created Velvet Hammer Films with his long time business partner, Jim Wright. After releasing his first film, “Naked Beneath the Water” in early 2008, he went on to direct two films, “Silent Night, Zombie Night” (teaming up again with Temple) and “Breath of Hate” (which stars Jason Mewes, best known from the Kevin Smith films as the unforgettable "Jay").

Sean also served as a producer on two other projects, "Someone’s Knocking at the Door” and “Warning!!! Pedophile Released” in the span of less than a year, which prompted Fangoria to recently dub him the ‘Indie Horror Specialist.’

Jason Mewes

New Jersey born and bred actor, who burst onto cinema screens in 1994, playing the grass smoking, fast talking, foul mouthed and over sexed, but very likable "Jay" in Kevin Smith's hilarious low budget hit CLERKS. The off beat & philosophical drug dealing characters of "Jay and Silent Bob" (Mewes and Smith) cropped up again in four more films directed by the talented Smith. The tepidly received MALLRATS, was followed by more street wisdom in the scintillating romantic comedy CHASING AMY, they tackled theological issues in the quirky religious comedy DOGMA and then took on Hollywood, in the road trip epic JAY AND SILENT BOB STRIKE BACK. There was also a short-lived animated series CLERKS. Their characters also made a cameo appearance in SCREAM 3.

Mewes has since kicked on to appearing in other non-Smith projects including PAULY SHORE IS DEAD, MY BIG FAT INDEPENDENT MOVIE and FEAST. His last Kevin Smith's films are CLERKS II (2006) and ZACK AND MIRI MAKE A PORNO. Mewes has appeared in every film directed by Smith except JERSEY GIRL and COP OUT.

Ezra Buzzington

Ezra Buzzington has worked with some of the best directors currently filming. A partial list includes: David Fincher (FIGHT CLUB), Terry Zwigoff (GHOST WORLD, ART SCHOOL CONFIDENTIAL), Paul Thomas Anderson (MAGNOLIA), Chris Nolan (THE PRESTIGE) and Alexandre Aja (THE HILLS HAVE EYES, MIRRORS). He also shot with Rob Zombie on both HALLOWEEN 1 & 2.

Ezra's original screenplay, The Crooked Man, a ghost story set in Hollywood, will be shot next year. Ezra will direct and star in it as well.

Lauren Walsh

Lauren was raised in Houston, Texas. When she was 18 she came out to Los Angeles to attend the Art Institute of California. After two years of school, she decided to become a full time actress.

Her first role was in THE GRIND with Michael Welch (TWILIGHT) and C. Thomas Howell (THE HITCHER) and has since landed starring roles in 18 YEAR OLD VIRGIN, THE TERMINATORS with Jeremy London (MALLRATS) and A. Martinez and the upcoming CAMPUS RADIO.
